

D1 - Bellringer

Final Countdown:

Finish working on your essay. It is due TODAY. We'll walk thru the submission process. Good luck!

Writing Time

- ▶ You've got the remainder of class to continue working on your Persuasive Essays.
Reminder: They are due online today, March 19th. Expert review was due March 11th (I emailed you about it, hopefully you took advantage!)
- ▶ Reminder: Log onto www.writemyworld.com to submit your essay!
- ▶ No fallacy; you've got enough on your plates today! Note that we will be reading our essays in class next time! Come dressed for success!

D2 - Bellringer

Prep to read your essay; practice with a partner, give each other feedback.
We will start in 20 minutes!

D3 - Bellringer

Debate: Why is the recent College Admission Scandal hurtful? Does it discredit a college education, or is it still worth it? VID

Argument Time!

- ▶ Ok, you've got 30ish minutes to prep for a debate!
- ▶ Resolution: The U.S. Federal government ought to make college free for all high school graduates.
- ▶ Format:
 - ▶ 2 min: Group A makes Pro Argument
 - ▶ 2 min: Group B Makes Con Argument
 - ▶ 2 min: Crossfire
 - ▶ 2 min: Group B makes rebuttal
 - ▶ 2 min: Group A makes rebuttal
 - ▶ 1 min: Group A makes final statement
 - ▶ 1 min Group B makes final statement

Reading

- ▶ Reading: Ch. 6: pp 97-100
- ▶ Consider the Following:
 - ▶ How does the author describe the sexual activity differently re: boys vs. girls?
 - ▶ What “connotations” exist in these two descriptions? Do they matter?
 - ▶ What is a sophist?
 - ▶ How did Plato and the sophists see things differently?

Logical Fallacy of the Day

- ▶ Argument by Personal Charm
 - ▶ This happens when people use their charm to convince others that their opinion is right...without offering any true evidence.
 - ▶ Often used in conjunction with other fallacies.
 - ▶ Example: Hey ladies (smiles, winks), I'm glad you asked...
 - ▶ What other fallacy is used here? VID